The predecessor company to Golden Age Resources, Inc., was Martin-Miller Internet Malls, Inc. (the "Company") Martin-Miller was organized in April 2000 with the issuance of 6,200,000 common shares of an original authorization of 25,000,000 common shares.

The products/services of Martin-Miller was an internet services company and developed a format for the development of a niche internet industry mall. To facilitate the internet mall format, the "Company" developed specific and detailed software and a web site which allowed users to easily search for related web sites and services.

The first site was devoted to the sale of information within the Mexico market. Once this mall was established, the company sought to develop other mall sites and promote them as "niche" mall destinations for specific subjects on the Internet.

The Company entered into revenue sharing agreements with unrelated parties that were selling their products and services via banner advertisements on the Company's web site. The Company utilized the web site traffic it developed to encourage customers to purchase premium ad placements with particular information of service expertise.

The Company developed other niche malls that corresponded with Management's view of the larger potential markets. The Company's mission was to expand its position as a pioneer and leader in the niche internet industry malls by providing consumers and service/product providers an effective means to find each other through the use of state-of-the-art technology and internet access.

The Company developed specialized internet industry malls that were pertinent to that specific type of mall before promoting and advertising the mall. The Company's goal was to develop the largest, most organized niche malls on the Internet.

The Company initiated a diversification program in the third quarter of 2012 by an acquisition into the hi-tech arena. Subsequently, the Company redirected its core business into a technology based emerging company and has detailedly organized a business plan of internal and external growth.
