

CannaVision Medical Cannabis & Pain Management Clinics Report: WebMD Article “Where Legal 25% of Cancer Patients Use Marijuana”

LAS VEGAS, NEVADA--(OTCMarkets-10/02/2017)--StereoVision Entertainment, Inc. (OTC PINK: SVSN), a publicly traded Nevada corporation announced today that their majority owned medical cannabis clinic and industrial hemp subsidiary CannaVision reports that an article on WebMD.com by HealthDay Reporter Robert Preidt states that “Where legal, 25% of Cancer patients use marijuana.”

“This article is one example of why many of the people on the CannaVision Clinics staff decided to pursue this new frontier in medicine,” said CannaVision President Marla Mahloch. There are so many opioid deaths these days it’s beginning to touch almost every family. Where medical cannabis is available, opioid deaths drop right off 25%. We at CannaVision believe that as we move along the medical cannabis acceptance curve and the true therapeutic value of cannabis is recognized and made available, we could reach the point where most people prefer medical cannabis products to the very expensive and extremely dangerous pharmaceutical drugs.”
