C. Business of Issuer.

The Company is exploring and negotiating with entities in the battery power technology field. The market for batteries and other prospective products is highly competitive, subject to rapid change and significantly affected by new product introductions and other market activities of industry participants.

Our proposed product interest is in applying novel technology solutions to the already established deep cycle battery market and at the emerging market of electric powered automobiles and other electric vehicles. Competitors offer a variety of products and services to address these markets.

To the extent material to an understanding of the issuer, please also include the following:

1. the issuer's primary and secondary SIC codes;

The Company's primary SIC code is 3559, special industry machinery.

2. if the issuer has never conducted operations, is in the development stage, or is currently conducting operations;

The Company currently is a development stage company.

3. whether the issuer is or has at any time been a "shell company";

The Company was a "Business Combination Shell Company" in 1995 and filed current reports for a period of three years under The Exchange Act.

Risk Factors

The Company is subject to a number of risk factors associated with development and early stage businesses. The risks the Company believes are most significant are set forth below:

Company is unable to attract, train and retain technical personnel, business may be materially and adversely affected.

Item 9 The nature of products or services offered.

- A. principal products or service, and their markets;

The Company is exploring and negotiating with entities in the battery power technology field.

Our proposed product interest is in applying novel technology solutions to the already established deep cycle battery market and at the emerging market of electric powered automobiles and other electric vehicles.

- B. distribution methods of the products or services;

The Company intends to distribute its products through a combination of retail (direct to end user) and wholesale (to the end user through a reseller) strategy.

- C. status of any publicly announced new product or service;

The Company is still in the process of developing awareness of all of its products.

- D. competitive business conditions, the issuer's competitive position in the industry, and method of competition;

The battery industry is mature, well-established and highly competitive. The industry is characterized by a few major domestic and foreign producers including Exide, Delphi, A.C. Delco, Johnson Controls, Inc., GNB, Electrosources, Inc., Energy Conversion Devices, Inc., Hawker and Yuasa. Our area of interest in this market depends upon our ability to demonstrate superior performance and cost attributes of battery technology. We believe that we should concentrate our technology interest in the electric vehicle segment of the market with a view to demonstrating improved energy to weight and longer battery life in comparison to traditional lead-acid batteries. Principal competitors in the electric vehicle market have directed their efforts to other battery types, such as nickel-cadmium, nickel-metal hydride, nickel-iron and sodium-sulfur, and lithium ion batteries, rather than lead-acid formulations.

- E. sources and availability of raw materials and the names of principal suppliers;

The Company believes that all of its raw materials are readily available from numerous sources, and does not depend on any one source.

- F. dependence on one or a few major customers;

The Company does not depend on one or a few customers.

- G. patents, trademarks, licenses, franchises, concessions, royalty agreements or labor contracts, including their duration; and
