Item 16: Management's Discussion and Analysis or Plan of Operation

The issuer has not had revenues from operations in each of the last two fiscal years, and according the issuer shall provide information for A and C and of Item 16's disclosure requirements.

A. Plan of Operation.

i. As of the end of the reporting period, the issuer has cash requirements satisfied through the end of Quarter 2 of 2015, which it raised in through a convertible note financing in Quarter 1 of 2015. In Quarter 2 of 2015, the issuer shall seek to clear certain investor and vendor debt of its balance sheet the by converting such debt to common stock, and shall seek to meet cash requirements through Quarter 3 of 2015 through direct investment, which may also be dilutive to shareholders. Management expects the issuer to be cash flow positive such that it meets its cash requirements some time in Quarter 4 of 2015.

ii., iii., and iv. (and general discussion of plan of operations from the CEO):

As the issuer moves into Quarter 2 of 2015 management plans to expand its operations into ownership and control of certain digital content distribution outlets for both music and film. Management believes that as the entertainment industry trends towards more and more on-line distribution of content, the real revenue growth is in ownership of on-line content distribution "pipes." If the future of the entertainment industry is in streaming content, I want our company to direct those streams rather than have to negotiate with companies to stream our content.

The Company is currently negotiating the acquisition of a music distribution company, which it plans to accomplish through stock-for-stock acquisition which would be dilutive to the issuer's shareholders.

C. Off –Balance Sheet Arrangements.

The issuer does not have any off-balance sheet arrangements.
