1. DESCRIPTION OF BUSINESS

General Development and Narrative Description of Business – Mobile Broadcast Holding Corporation with its registered office located at 375 N Stephanie St., Suite 1411 Henderson, NV 89014-8909, was formerly Progress Watch Company, a company dedicated to independently providing high end Swiss made mechanical watch movements. The majority shareholders have sold their shares during 2014. After the change in control, the company was renamed in Mobile Broadcast Holding Corporation, with a focus on mobile streaming broadcast technology.

History of the Company – In the period 2000 until 2013 the company had focused on the development of new types of watch movements. After this activity was transferred the company has been looking for new opportunities. In 2014 management decided to focus on mobile streaming broadcast technology. After the change of control, in June 2014 the company formed the subsidiary Mobile Broadcast Corporation, which licenced the technology of Briken Inc., for creating the Whirld mobile application. The licence was partly paid through shares in the subsidiary Mobile Broadcast Corporation. In October the Company acquired the shares in Mobile Broadcast Corporation in exchange to own share to Briken Inc.

During 2014 received a new OTC Market Ticker (MBHC), the former (PROW) went inactive.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Past reporting requirement and basis of accounting - Due to the insolvency of the foreign subsidiaries, the company was for a long time without any cash or products. Therefore the Board of Directors did not sustain and maintain a proper bookkeeping system as from 2002 until 2007, did not prepare financial statements, did not properly report the account of the Company, not did it hold annual meetings from 1999 forward. The Company has decided to now report retroactively back to the year 2005. As many documents are incomplete or missing and are not traceable, the new Board of Directors has decided to net out the paid-in capital against the net losses as of December 31, 2004. The Company has decided to prepare the annual reports of the year 2006 until 2009 and the quarterly report for the year 2009 onwards on the basis of the most recent Accounting Standards issued by FASB.

Principles of Consolidation - The consolidated financial statements included in the past the accounts of the Company and its former wholly-owned Swiss subsidiary. As the shares in the Swiss subsidiary were assigned to the holders of the convertible bonds, in the beginning of July 2013, the deconsolidation has taken place as per July 1, 2013. The balance sheets after this date include only the Company financial statements. Based on the management plans to distribute the share of the subsidiary to a new holding company, in which the current shareholders will participate, the subsidiary has not been consolidated, as it is classified to be discontinued under the current parent company. These consolidated financial statements reflect the use of significant accounting policies, as described below and elsewhere in the notes to the consolidated financial statements.

Revenue Recognition –Revenues are generally recognized when the products are shipped to the customers. The company has no substantial sales at this time.

Impairment Of Long-Lived And Intangible Asset*s* - As required by authoritative guidance issued by the FASB, the Company assesses the recoverability of long-lived assets for which an indication of impairment exists. The recoverability of assets to be held and used is measured by comparing the carrying amount of an asset to the future undiscounted net cash flows expected to be generated by the asset. If an asset is considered to be impaired, the impairment to be recognized is measured as the amount by which the carrying amount of the asset exceeds its fair value. Fair value of long-lived assets is determined using the expected cash flows discounted at a rate commensurate with the risk involved. The Company believes that the future cash flows to be received from the remaining long-lived assets will exceed the respective assets' carrying value, and accordingly has not recorded any additional impairment losses.

Inventories – Inventories are measured at the lower of cost and net realizable value. The cost of inventory is based on the weighted average principle for finished goods and on the standard cost principle for raw materials and work-in-progress for inventories that are manufactured. Cost includes expenditure incurred in acquiring the inventories, production or conversion costs and other costs incurred in bringing them to their existing location and condition. In the case of manufactured inventories and work in progress, cost includes an appropriate share of production overheads based on normal operating capacity. Net realizable value is the estimated selling price in the ordinary course of business, less the estimated cost of completion and selling expenses.

Cash and Cash Equivalents - All highly liquid investments with original maturities of three months or less are classified as cash and cash equivalents. The fair value of cash and cash equivalents approximates the amounts shown on the financial statements.

Use of Estimates - The preparation of financial statements in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. These estimates and assumptions are used in, but not limited to, certain receivables and accounts payable and the provision for uncertain liabilities. Actual results could differ materially from those estimates.

Translation of Foreign Currency - In accordance with authoritative guidance issued by the FASB, the Company classifies items as other comprehensive income by their nature in the financial statements and displays the accumulated balance of other comprehensive income separately from retained earnings and additional paid-in capital in the equity section of the consolidated balance sheet. The assets and liabilities of the Company's foreign subsidiary have been recorded in their local currency and translated to U.S. dollars using period-end exchange rates. Income and expense items have been translated at the average rate of exchange prevailing during the period. Any adjustment resulting from translating the financial statements of the foreign subsidiary is reflected as "other comprehensive income", net of related tax.

Income Taxes - The Company is subject to income taxes in both the United States and Switzerland. Income tax expense (benefit) is provided for using the asset and liability method. Deferred income taxes are recognized at currently enacted tax rates for the expected future tax consequences attributable to temporary differences between amounts reported for income tax purposes and financial reporting purposes. Deferred taxes are provided for the undistributed earnings as if they were to be distributed. The tax rate for the six months period ended June 30, 2015 is affected by the estimated valuation allowance against the Company's deferred tax assets. The Company regularly reviews its deferred tax assets for recoverability taking into consideration such factors as recurring operating losses, projected future taxable income and the expected timing of the reversals of existing temporary differences. The authoritative guidance issued by the FASB requires the Company to record a valuation allowance when it is more likely than not that some portion or all of the deferred tax assets will not be realized. In determining a conclusion that a valuation allowance is not needed is difficult when there is negative evidence such as cumulative losses in recent years. Based on the level of deferred tax assets as of June 30, 2015, the level of historical losses realized and the fact that the Company not filed any income tax returns until recently, the Company has determined that the uncertainty regarding the realization of these assets is sufficient to warrant the establishment of a full valuation allowance against the Company's net deferred tax assets. The municipal tax paid formerly in Switzerland has been expensed.

Recently Adopted Accounting Standards -
The Company has adopted all recently issued accounting pronouncements. The adoption of the accounting pronouncements, include those not yet effective, is not anticipated to have a material effect on the financial position or results of operation of the Company.

3. CONVERTIBLE LOANS

The Company issued Convertible Bonds during 2015 for a total amount of US$ 107,222. The bonds are interest bearing with an interest rate of 9 % per year. The bonds can be converted into common share at any time. The price of the conversion is the market price with 30% discount.

4. SHAREHOLDERS' EQUITY

The total number of shares of all classes of stock, which the corporation shall have authority to issue in 360,000,000, consisting of 350,000,000 common shares and 10,000,000 preferred shares. The Board of Directors decided to decrease the authorized common shares with 250,000,000 on March 6, 2015.

Currently the company has no stock-based compensation plans for employees and non-employee members of the Board of Directors.

5. INCOME TAXES

The Company and its wholly-owned subsidiary did not file income tax returns until recently in the United States. Therefore, the losses made in the past cannot be compensated with future profits, so no deferred income tax can be calculated on the losses carry forward.

6. EARNINGS PER SHARE

The Company computes basic EPS based solely on the weighted average number of common shares outstanding (issued and unissued) during the period in accordance with authoritative guidance issued by the FASB. Diluted EPS reflects all potential dilution of common stock. The following table reconciles Basic EPS with Diluted EPS for the three months period ended March 31:
