NOTE 2 – SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Basis of presentation

The consolidated financial statements are prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles in the United States of America ("US GAAP"). The accompanying consolidated financial statements for the interim periods are unaudited and reflect all adjustment (consisting only of normal recurring adjustments), which are, in the opinion of management, necessary for a fair presentation of the financial position and operating results for the periods presented.

The consolidated financial statements of the Company include the accounts of our wholly-owned and majority owned subsidiaries. All significant inter-company balances and transactions have been eliminated.

Use of estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with US GAAP requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect certain reported amounts and disclosures. Accordingly, actual results could differ from those estimates. Significant estimates in 2015 and 2014 include the allowance for doubtful accounts which is based on an evaluation of our outstanding accounts receivable including the age of amounts due, the financial condition of our specific customers, knowledge of our industry segment in Asia, and historical bad debt experience, also the useful life of property and equipment.

Cash and cash equivalents

For purposes of the consolidated statements of cash flows, the Company considers all highly liquid instruments purchased with a maturity of three months or less and money market accounts to be cash equivalents.

Accounts receivable

The Company has a policy of reserving for uncollectible accounts based on its best estimate of the amount of probable credit losses in its existing accounts receivable. The Company periodically reviews its accounts receivable to determine whether an allowance is necessary based on an analysis of past due accounts and other factors that may indicate that the realization of an account may be in doubt. Account balances deemed to be uncollectible are charged to the allowance after all means of collection have been exhausted and the potential for recovery is considered remote. As of June 30, 2015 and December 31, 2014, the Company has established, based on a review of its outstanding balances, an allowance for doubtful accounts in the amount of $171,707 and $170,317, respectively.

Property and equipment

Property and equipment are carried at cost. The cost of repairs and maintenance is expensed as incurred; major replacements and improvements are capitalized. When assets are retired or disposed of, the cost and accumulated depreciation are removed from the accounts, and any resulting gains or losses are included in income in the year of disposition. In accordance with SFAS No. 144, "Accounting for the Impairment or Disposal of Long-Lived Assets," the Company examines the possibility of decreases in the value of fixed assets when events or changes in circumstances reflect the fact that their recorded value may not be recoverable.

Advances from customers

Advances from customers totaled $0 and $0 at June 30, 2015 and December 31, 2014, respectively. Advances from customers consist of prepayments from third party customers to the Company for merchandise that had not yet shipped or services not yet provided. We will recognize the deposits as revenue as customers take delivery of the goods or services are provided, in compliance with our revenue recognition policy.

Impairment of long-lived assets

In accordance with ASC 360, “Property, Plant, and Equipment”, we periodically review our long-lived assets for impairment whenever events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying amount of the assets may not be fully recoverable. We recognize an impairment loss when the sum of expected undiscounted future cash flows is less than the carrying amount of the asset. The amount of impairment is measured as the difference between the estimated fair value and the book value of the underlying asset. We did not record any impairment charges during the six month periods ended June 30, 2015.

Concentration of Credit Risks

Financial instruments, which potentially subject the Company to concentrations of credit risk, consist principally of cash and trade accounts receivable. The Company places its cash with high credit quality financial institutions in the United States and China. As of June 30, 2015, bank deposits in the United States did not exceed federally insured limits. On June 30, 2015, the Company had $825,660 in China bank deposits, which cannot be insured. In China, there is no equivalent to Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (“FDIC”) insurance as in the United States. Through June 30, 2015, we have not experienced any losses of funds maintained in our Chinese based accounts. To reduce our risk associated with the failure of financial institutions; both in China and the United States, we periodically evaluate the credit quality of the financial institutions in which we hold deposits.

At June 30, 2015 and December 31, 2014, our bank deposits, by geographic area, were as follows:

	June 30, 2015		December 31, 2014
United States	$ 7	0.0%	$ 7	0.0%
China	825,660	100.0%	346,368	100.0%
Total cash and cash equivalent	$ 825,667	100%	$ 346,375	100%

Fair Value of financial Instruments

The carrying value of cash and cash equivalents, prepaid expenses, accounts payable and accrued expenses and other payable approximate their fair value due to their short-term maturities.

Revenue recognition

The Company follows the guidance of the Securities and Exchange Commission’s Staff Accounting Bulletin 104 for revenue recognition. In general, we record revenue when persuasive evidence of an arrangement exists, services have been rendered or product delivery has occurred, the sales price to the customer is fixed or determinable, and collectability is reasonably assured.

Foreign currency translation

Transactions and balances originally denominated in U.S. dollars are presented at their original amounts. Transactions and balances in other currencies are converted into U.S. dollars in accordance with ASC Section 830-20-35 and are included in determining net income or loss.

Our reporting currency is the U.S. dollar. The functional currency of our Chinese subsidiaries is the local currency; the Chinese dollar or Renminbi (“RMB”). The financial statements of the subsidiaries are translated into United States dollars using year-end rates of exchange for assets and liabilities, and average rates of exchange for the period for revenues, costs, and expenses. Net gains and losses resulting from foreign exchange transactions are included in the consolidated statements of operations. Translation adjustments resulting from the process of translating the local currency financial statements into U.S. dollars are included in determining comprehensive income or loss. The translation adjustments were an unrealized gain of $231,376 for the first six months of fiscal year 2015.

Income (loss) per common share

Pursuant to ASC Section 260-10-45, basic income (loss) per common share is computed by dividing income (loss) available to common shareholders by the weighted average number of shares of common stock outstanding for the periods presented. Diluted income (loss) per share reflects the potential dilution that could occur if securities or other contracts to issue common stock were exercised or converted into common stock or resulted in the issuance of common stock that would then share in the income, subject to anti-dilution limitations.

Comprehensive income (loss)

Comprehensive income (loss) is comprised of net income and other comprehensive income (loss). Other comprehensive income (loss) refers to revenue, expenses, gains and losses that under accounting principles generally accepted in the United States and included on comprehensive income (loss) but are excluded from net income (loss) as their amounts are recorded directly as an adjustment to stockholders' equity.

Our other comprehensive income consists of currency translation adjustments. The following table sets forth the computation of comprehensive income for the three and six months periods ended June 30, 2015 and 2014 respectively.

NOTE 6 – OPERATING RISK

Country risk

Currently, the Company's revenues are primarily derived from the sales in the Peoples Republic of China ("PRC"). The Company hopes to expand its operations to countries outside the PRC; however, such expansion has not been commenced and there are no assurances that the Company will be able to achieve such an expansion successfully. Therefore, a downturn or stagnation in the economic environment of the PRC could have a material adverse effect on the Company's financial condition.

Product risk

In addition to competing with other manufacturers of product offerings, the Company competes with larger US companies who have greater funds available for expansion, marketing, research and development and the ability to attract more qualified personnel. The US companies may be able to offer products at a lower price or under better competitive terms, which would adversely affect our operations.

Exchange risk

The Company cannot guarantee that the current exchange rate will remain steady; therefore, there is a possibility that the Company could post the same amount of profit for two comparable periods and, because of a fluctuating exchange rate, actually post higher or lower profit depending on exchange rate of Renminbi converted to US dollars on that date. The exchange rate could fluctuate depending on changes in the political and economic environments without notice.

Political risk

Currently, the PRC is in a period of growth and is openly promoting business development in order to bring more business into the PRC. Additionally, the PRC allows a Chinese corporation to be owned by a United States corporation. If the laws or regulations are changed by the PRC government, our ability to effectively operate our PRC subsidiaries could be negatively affected.

NOTE 7 – FOREIGN OPERATIONS

For the six months periods ended June 30, 2015 and year ended December 31, 2014, we derived all of our revenue from our subsidiaries located in the People's Republic of China. Total assets by geographic areas as of June 30, 2015 and December 31, 2014 are as follows:

	Identifiable Assets at
	June 30, 2015	December 31, 2014
United States	$ 2,061,942	$ 2,070,776
China	9,668,902	8,219,357
Total	$ 11,730,844	$ 10,290,133

NOTE 8 – DISCONTINUED OPERATIONS

On June 30, 2013, through our wholly-owned subsidiary Dragon Shanghai, we held our 51% interest in Chengdu ISoft for sale because it's business development in recent years has failed to meet the manager's expectation. The asset and liabilities associated with the discontinued operations were reflected as current assets or liabilities held for sale in our balance sheets.

In January 2008, Chengdu ISoft was formed with an initial registered capital of $285,714 (RMB 2 million). Dragon Capital contributed approximately $145,714 (RMB 1.02 million) to obtain a 51% interest in Chengdu ISoft.

On January 2, 2011, we entered into a disposition agreement with Wei Lu, the minority owner of both Shanghai Longri Information Technology Co., Ltd ("Shanghai Longri") and Shanghai Huice Electronic System Integration Co., Ltd ("Shanghai Huice"). Pursuant to the agreement, we transferred all of our rights, title and 51% interest in Shanghai Longri and Shanghai Huice to Mr. Lu in exchange for an aggregate of 2,000,000 shares of our common stock held by Mr. Lu. As a result, a total of 2,000,000 shares of the Company's common stock held by Mr. Lu were to be cancelled, and Shanghai Longri and Shanghai Huice were discontinued as of January 2, 2011 and were sold effective as of that date.

In April 2006, we acquired a 51% interest in Shanghai Longri, a Chinese limited liability company, in exchange for 10,000,000 shares of common stock of Dragon Capital. Industry

China is the world's most populous country with 1.3 billion citizens and in the midst of a steady transition to a free market economy that is transforming global trade. According to the Chinese Academy of Social Science the middle class is estimated between 200-300 million people or 70-100 million households. Household purchasing power is between $9,000 and $12,000 and household wealth is approximately $36,000. The combination of massive capital investment, low cost labor, re-admission to the World Trade Organization in 2001 and a blossoming domestic consumer economy presents a rare opportunity to invest in a nation becoming a major economic superpower.

Given the country's size and its demographics, telecommunications currently clearly plays one of the major roles in the Chinese industry landscape. Over the last decade, the Chinese telecommunications service sector has gone through key reforms that substantially deregulated the market previously dominated by the monopolistic China Telecom. China surpassed the U.S. as the number one mobile market in the world in 2002. According to data released by China's Ministry of Industry and Information Technology in December 2012, the number of mobile phone users in the country is 1.10 billion at the end of November 2012, of which 220 million are 3G users.

As the market grows, mobile subscribers in China are increasingly using their wireless handsets to access a wider range of value-added services, including instant message, information services and games applications..

In the mobile equipment market, the multinational firms that had an early presence in China, such as Motorola, Nokia Corp., Ericsson, Siemens AG, Sony Corp., Toshiba Corp. and Matsushita Electric Corp. have made China an important base for manufacturing, purchasing and research and development.

China Mobile Communications Corp., parent of the world's most valuable phone carrier, built a trial 4G mobile network for the 2010 Shanghai Expo, and won the government approval in December 2010 to expand the test to six cities including Shenzhen and Nanjing in 2011. The expansion of 4G telecommunication technology in China presents substantial opportunity for newly developed application software and value-added services that the Company now offers.

With year over year growth of 85% in 2012, China is the fastest-growing smartphone market by far according to recent research from Informa Telecoms & Media. Additionally, this growth is being driven by the explosive demand for Android phones. Sales in China of devices powered by this OS exceeded 50% penetration in the first half of 2012 and Informa estimates that two in every three handsets sold in China in 2012 are powered by Android. China also represented one third of all Android devices sold throughout the world in 2012. Industry experts estimate that more than 200 million additional devices operating on Android will be sold in China in 2013. The mobile application development market for the Android devices in particular is in its early stages of growth in China and represents a vast opportunity for Chinese applications developers.
