NOTES TO UNAUDITED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

For the three months ended March 31, 2016 and the year ended December 31, 2015.

NOTE 1. ORGANIZATION AND BASIS OF PRESENTATION

Financial Information

The accompanying unaudited financial statements of Continental Beverage Brands Corporation formerly: Hermes Jets, Inc. (the "Company" or "we") have been prepared in accordance with principles generally accepted in the United States of America for interim financial information and applicable rules of Regulation S-X of the Security and Exchange Act. Accordingly, they do not include all of the information and notes required by generally accepted accounting principles for complete financial statements. In the opinion of management, all adjustments considered necessary for a fair presentation have been included. These financial statements and notes should be read in conjunction with the financial statements and notes hereto.

Acquisitions

Through Fortune Aero Metals (HK) Ltd., a wholly owned subsidiary, the Company is engaged in brokering, dismantling and acquiring scrap metal and components from liquidations and suppliers for third-party markets.

In May 2015, the Company formed two (2) new wholly owned subsidiaries, Continental Beverage Inventory and Warehousing, Ltd., and Continental Beverage Marketing and Promotion, Inc. These subsidiaries were formed in anticipation of two (2) new lines of business, the warehousing of distilled beverages and exclusive sales, marketing arrangement with a manufacturer of distilled liquors.

Basis of Consolidation

The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of Fortune Aero Metals (HK), Ltd.

On February 2, 2015, the Company changed its name to Continental Beverage Brands Corporation in anticipation of acquiring the rights to certain brands in the distilled spirits industry. See NOTE 6.

NOTE 2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Use of Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with general accounting principles accepted in the United States of America require management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the amounts reported in the financial statements and accompanying notes. Actual results could differ from these estimates.

Cash

Cash consists principally of currency and demand deposits at commercial banks. The Company had cash of $44,861 on March 31, 2016 and $44,541 on December 31, 2015.

Revenue Recognition

The Company follows the guidance of the Accounting Standards Codification ("ASC") Topic 605, formerly Staff Accounting Bulletin ("SAB") 104 in regard to income recognition. In general, the Company records revenue when persuasive evidence of an arrangement exists, services have been rendered, the sales price to customer is fixed or determinable and collectability is reasonably assured. Revenues from services are recognized when the services are performed, evidence of an arrangement exists, the fee is fixed and determinable and collectability is probable. In circumstances when these criteria are not met, revenue recognition is deferred until resolution occurs.

Net Income or (Loss) Per Share of Common Stock

Basic and diluted income (loss) per common share is based upon the weighted average number of common shares outstanding during the period computed under the provisions of Accounting Standards Codification subtopic 260-10, Earnings per Share ("ASC 260-10). Diluted income (loss) per share included the dilutive effects of common stock equivalents on an "as if converted" basis.

Recently Issued Accounting Pronouncements

Management believes that any recently issued, but not yet effective, accounting standards, if adopted, will have a material effect on the Company's consolidated financial statements.

Income Taxes

Income taxes are accounted under the asset liability method. Deferred tax assets and liabilities are recognized for future tax consequences attributable to differences between the financial statements carrying amounts of existing assets and liabilities and their respective tax basis, and operating loss and tax credit carry-forwards. Deferred tax assets and liabilities are measured using enacted tax rates excepted to apply to taxable income in the years in which those temporary differences are expected to be recovered or settled. The effect of deferred tax assets and liabilities of a change in tax rates is recognized in operations in the period in which it is enacted. A valuation allowance is provided when it is more likely than not that a portion or all of a tax deferred tax asset will not be realized. The ultimate realization of deferred tax assets is dependent upon the generation of future taxable income and the reversal of deferred tax liabilities during the period in which related temporary differences become deductible. The benefit of tax positions taken or expected to be take in the Company's income tax returns are recognized in the condensed financial instruments if such positions are more likely than not of being sustained.

In accordance with ASC 740-10, the Company recognizes the financial statement benefit of a tax position only after determining that the relevant tax authority would more likely than not sustain the position following an audit. For tax positions meeting this standard, the amount recognized in the financial statements upon ultimate settlement with the relevant tax authority.

Fair Value Instruments

ASC 825-10, Financial Instruments requires disclosure of the fair value of certain financial instruments. The carrying value of cash and accounts payable and accrued liabilities, as reflected in the balance sheets, approximate fair value because of the short-term maturity of these instruments. All other significant financial assets, financial liabilities and equity instruments of the Company are either recognized or disclosed in the financial statements along with other information relevant for making a reasonable assessment of cash flows, interest rate risk and credit risk. Where acceptable the fair values of financial assets and liabilities have been determined and disclosed; otherwise only available information pertinent to fair value has been disclosed.

The Company follows ASC 820-10, Fair Market Measurements and Disclosures and Accounting Standards Codification subtopic 825-10, Financial Instruments ("ASC 825-10"), which permits entities to choose to measure many financial instruments and certain other items at fair value.

NOTE 3. PROVISION FOR INCOME TAXES

The Company files income tax returns in the United States federal jurisdiction and in Canada. With few exceptions, the Company is no longer subject to U.S. federal income tax examination by tax authorities on tax returns filed before December 31, 2008. The Company will file its U.S. federal return for the year ended December 31, 2014. The Company has no payments due for years ended December 31, 2013, and 2012, respectively. The U.S. federal returns are open for tax years 2008-2014. There are currently no corporate tax filings under examination by IRS tax authorities.

We did not provide any current or deferred U.S. Federal Income Tax provision or benefit for any periods presented because we have experienced operating losses since our date of incorporation. Accounting for the uncertainty in income taxes when it is more likely than not that a tax asset cannot be realized through future income, the Company must allow for this future tax benefit. We provided full valuation allowances on the net deferred asset, consisting of net operating loss carry-forwards, because management has determined that it is more likely than not that we will not earn income sufficient to realize the deferred assets during the carry-forward period.

C. Primary and Secondary SIC Codes

Primary Code: 5182- Wine and Distilled Liquors
Secondary Code: 5093- Scrap and Waste Materials

D. Fiscal Year

The Company's fiscal year ends on December 31st.

E. Services

The Company has four (4) principal service groups:

- Travel agent/broker services
- All-inclusive Travel Services
- Empty Leg Charter Management Services
- Scrap Recycling of Airplane, Parts and metals

Sales of Flight Capacities:

Provide broker/travel agent services by connecting a customer with an air travel operator that meets the customer's specific travel requirements. This service works similarly to the standard travel agency model; the customer pays the provider directly and the Company bills the provider for its services in arranging the transaction. It is management's understanding of the industry that commissions for basic brokerage services range within the five (5%) percent to fifteen (15%) range. The Company envisions that certain of its services will provide opportunity for greater than average commissions, especially since it is offering high end travel services. Nonetheless, management anticipates that the Company's pricing policy will be consistent with the industry's best practices.

Sales of All-Inclusive Travel Packages:

Our business plan when fully developed will allow the Company to secure flight capacity, arrange for a pilot and cabin crew as well as any other services the client may require- in essence completely organize the travel plans of the customers. Customers will be asked to pay directly to the Company a service fee for travel management, including "helpdesk service". Additionally, the air travel service providers will be invoiced as described in the paragraph above. We anticipate that the additional services will include, but be limited to, catering, concierge and ground transportation services.

Empty Leg Charter Management Services:

The "one-way" flight adversely affects operators and consumers alike. One-way travel can be expensive for the operator or consumer depending on whom must bear the burden of the empty return flight. We are developing an on-line database which will allow operators to update their capacities for empty leg returns allowing the Company to match flight operations to reduce occurrences of empty return flights, thereby increasing value to the consumer and operator.

Scrap Recycling of Airplane, Parts and metals and liquidations

Under its current subsidiary Fortune Aero Metals (HK) Ltd the company is engaged in brokering, dismantling, and acquiring, scrap metals, and components from liquidations, and suppliers for third-party markets.

The Market:

The target market for each of these services begins with business and leisure travel for high end consumes of air travel services. The overall travel industry represents nearly $2 Trillion dollars worldwide[1], of which the report goes on to point out nearly thirty (30%) percent is attributable to "affluent travelers". A survey by Unity Marketing[2] of 1,300 affluent users of travel services, found that these consumers looked for value and personal service options such as concierge services over basic travel agency services.

While a basic tenant of the Company's marketing philosophy includes travel/agent broker services, prime market will be to market travel management services. These management services will be the epitome of personal concierge travel services, stretching from charter operators, to cabin crews, to ground transportation and to offering its customers an economy of service based upon its empty leg database, which will significantly reduce the cost of one-way charters.

Scrap Airplane Parts and Liquidations

With 12,000 new aircraft worth $1.3 trillion due to be delivered by 2020, recycling the discarded models has become a crucial issue.

According to the Aircraft Fleet Recycling Association (AFRA) up to 12,000 aircraft could be scrapped in the next 20 years. By 2016, it aims to perfect processes that will recycle 90% of an aircraft. Currently, around 80–85% is the maximum, but this is up from less than 50% just a few years ago. Air France agrees with the estimate and is now working on dismantling its old aircraft rather than selling them on.

But more airlines need to get involved. Record orders mean more aircraft will be scrapped especially as there are fewer markets to sell on old models. Recycling aircraft could be important to airline business going forward and will form an integral part of aviation's environmental plans.

The value of a decommissioned aircraft varies enormously. Engines and avionics in good working order are obviously worth something. But if an aircraft can't fly, an airline may well end up spending money as there are no companies offering mobile recycling facilities. Ships can get towed but aviation doesn't have that luxury.

An important part of the valuation process is the paperwork. Good service records will up the value of parts. If an aircraft has passed through several hands and records have been lost then an aircraft loses a lot of its value. Aviation's accounting practices mean that stored aircraft are recognized as assets long after they can economically or safely fly, further delaying decommissioning and reducing the aircraft's value as scrap.

Another potential pitfall is impending legislation. There is nothing specific to aviation in any of the major markets yet but the European Union does have strict regulations regarding product life cycles in other areas, such as automobiles and white goods.

The manufacturers will obviously have an important role to play. Airbus started the ball rolling in 2005 with, the first full scale project researching dismantling a commercial jet. The manufacturer is a comparative novice in recycling aircraft though. Since starting production more than 40 years ago it is estimated that fewer than 400 Airbus aircraft have been scrapped.

In the third quarter of 2015, Continental began its shift to the liquor distribution and acquisitions businesses.

Continental Beverage Brands Corporation through its two subsidiaries, Continental Inventory & Warehousing Ltd. and Continental Dairy Brands Ltd. develops acquires and consolidates consumer branded, beverage and dairy product companies.
