Post # 45676 of 45676 Go

I am amazed that after six years the cynics are still posting trash. For the newcomers and old-timers alike, the road has been long and frustrating. Now it's time to look ahead.

Most sub-penny stock investors lose money year after year and continue to invest in loosing companies. Most, but not all, penny stocks are under-capitalized, built on hype, lying and deception. Investors who make money are on the inside. Management behind this type of purchase, shell/startup, are usually in it to make a fast buck. Most of these companies have little substance and a whole bunch of hype. Investors in penny stocks have been burnt many, many times and still continue to invest in this junk. Because of this past history and certain issues, you cannot see the forest for the trees.

Misinformation from naysayers presents a negative picture, including comments like:
1.Investor major compliant - no audited financials for the past 6 years.
2.The company's posts are childish, bad sentence structure, misspelling.
3.The company is a scam.
4.The management is scamming all investors.

However, the reality of eFUEL is quite unique in the penny world. Management has invested large sums of money and persevered during challenging times. You need only look at its history to know what I am talking about. Bottom line, they bought a pig of a company, were cheated and lied to by the previous owners of this shell. Despite these conditions, management has fought tooth and nail to keep eFUEL alive, investing large sums of money, time and energy.
Fast forward six years, eFUEL is still around and thriving. Management transfer or purchased millions in assets and are now showing a substantial positive cash flow.

Vanguard builds ETFs to be low-cost at every turn.

1.For the first time in six years you have certified IRS audit
2.They are European and might not speak or write the Kings English in the proper sentence structure. But, that has no bearing on what they have achieved and the hard work they put into building eFUEL into a strong and profitable company.
3.If management had wanted to scam investors, they would have pumped this stock and walked away with a barrel of money.
4.Instead, management's only objective has been to build a great company and reap the rewards for the investors, company, and family.
