6) Describe the Issuer's Business, Products and Services

Describe the issuer's business so a potential investor can clearly understand the company. In answering this item, please include the following:

H. a description of the issuer's business operations;

Halitron, Inc. is an equity investment holding company. The Company is implementing an acquisition roll-up model of acquiring high growth sales and marketing businesses. Once acquired, the collective group of companies leverage the low cost and efficient infrastructure that has been created. Management is focusing on acquisition targets that have business operations in sales, marketing, and manufacturing industries.

The Company is not and never has been a shell. The Company has had both assets and operations since its incorporation in January 2003. From its inception through 2008 the Company filed all of its periodic reports on a timely basis. During its reporting periods between 2008 and 2013, management determined that it could conserve its financial resources by converting operations to a licensing model from a manufacturing model. In a licensing model the Company could reduce its overall costs used to generate revenues. During this entire period the Company pursued its business plan to convert to a licensing model to conserve operating capital. Management determined that in addition to its conversion to a licensing model, the Company would need to terminate its periodic reporting to conserve operating capital by not having to pay professional fees related to such periodic reporting.

During its period of converting to the approved licensing model, management continued to pursue its business operations and seek out additional opportunities. The Company entered into various marketing and licensing agreements, joint venture agreements and sponsorship and development agreements. The Company has posted all required reports to the Filings and Disclosure section on the OTC Markets portal. Management believes it will return to its fully reporting status in 2017.
