Subsequent to March 31, 2019 and the effective date of the divestment, the Company intends to continue to focus and operate in the energy sector and generally in the oilfield supply, service and exploration and production sectors. The principals of Fluid End Sales have agreed to continue to work with the company to complete all oil field equipment and part supply transactions which were in progress as of May 1, 2019 and to continue to work with the Company on a go forward basis to broker or otherwise assist and participate in sales of oil field equipment and the like on a joint venture basis. Additionally, the Company intends to further expand in the oilfield supply and service areas by forming and participating with other established energy companies in an ownership and joint venture basis as possible.

History of the Company –The business of the Company's original predecessor is unknown. Beginning in 1999 and sequentially after that to the date of the holding company reorganization the predecessor was engaged in development of a high-end, Swiss-made mechanical wrist watch movement, development of a platform and application for live video streaming to hand held devices (twice), durable and disposable medical equipment sales and medical cannabis and low thc/high cbd cannabidoil products. 4.2 SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES Revenue Recognition –Revenues are generally recognized when the products are shipped to the customers.

Inventories – Inventories are measured at the lower of cost and net realizable value. The cost of inventory is based on the weighted average principle for finished goods and on the standard cost principle for raw materials and work-in-progress for inventories that are manufactured. Cost includes expenditure incurred in acquiring the inventories, production or conversion costs and other costs incurred in bringing them to their existing location and condition. In the case of manufactured inventories and work in progress, cost includes an appropriate share of production overheads based on normal operating capacity. Net realizable value is the estimated selling price in the ordinary course of business, less the estimated cost of completion and selling expenses.

Cash and Cash Equivalents - All highly liquid investments with original maturities of nine months or less are classified as cash and cash equivalents. The fair value of cash and cash equivalents approximates the amounts shown on the financial statements.

Use of Estimates - The preparation of financial statements in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. These estimates and assumptions are used in, but not limited to, certain receivables and accounts payable and the provision for uncertain liabilities. Actual results could differ materially from those estimates.

Income Taxes - The Company is subject to income taxes in the United States. Income tax expense (benefit) is provided for using the asset and liability method. Deferred income taxes are recognized at currently enacted tax rates for the expected future tax consequences attributable to temporary differences between amounts reported for income tax purposes and financial reporting purposes. Deferred taxes are provided for the undistributed earnings as if they were to be distributed. The tax rate for the period ended December 31, 2017 is affected by the estimated valuation allowance against the Company's deferred tax assets. The Company regularly reviews its deferred tax assets for recoverability taking into consideration such factors as recurring operating losses, projected future taxable income and the expected timing of the reversals of existing temporary differences. The authoritative guidance issued by the FASB requires the Company to record a valuation allowance when it is more likely than not that some portion or all of the deferred tax assets will not be realized. In determining a conclusion that a valuation allowance is not needed is difficult when there is negative evidence such as cumulative losses in recent years. Based on the level of deferred tax assets as of December 31, 2018 the level of historical losses realized and the fact that the Company not filed any income tax returns until recently, the Company has determined that the uncertainty regarding the realization of these assets is sufficient to warrant the establishment of a full valuation allowance against the Company's net deferred tax assets.
