

New York, New York June, 28 2012, Evader, Inc. (EVDR) www.evadercorp.com provides updates of past 3 years, successive contracts & refinements.

Over the past 3 years, successive contracts have allowed the robot to be refined.

Refinements:

- Safety bumpers front and rear with emergency impact wheel shut off
- Full remote control of all functions
- Interactive animation and auto hand shake function (people seem to always like to shake the robots hand)
- The technology has evolved so that now cell phone video is feasible. In addition, there is WIFI.
- Easy free wheel switch over to allow the robot to be move around easily over long distances
- All operating components located in the lower case. Greater modularity and service benefits
- Ultra small, self contained, hand controller
- Medical design with non-marring wheels, powder coated frame, modularized components and a full day's service battery module. The robot contains both a Galaxy tablet 7 (32 gig storage) and an Arduino processor to perform sensory and interactive functions.

- The head “look” of the robot can be easily changed and includes video and sensory functions. The personality and proprietary nature of the robot is usually determined by the head design. That is what people focus on. There are many choices available.

Currently, there is one complete and fully tested robot in inventory with three others in production.

Someday, it would be an interesting project to review the border patrol /security robot.
