The consolidated financial statements of the Company have been prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles in the United States of America. Any reference herein to “CADY”, the “Company”, “we”, “our” or “us” is intended to mean Digital Caddies, Inc. including the subsidiaries indicated above, unless otherwise indicated.

Description of Business

Digital Caddies, Inc. (“CADY” or the “Company”) is a corporation, which was incorporated under the laws of the State of Oklahoma on September 7, 2011. The shares of stock and warrants of the Company were previously held in the name of DNA Beverage Corp., a Nevada Corporation, prior to the Company completing a holding company formation pursuant to Section 1081(a) of the Oklahoma General Corporation Laws. The Company’s fiscal year end is October 31.

The evolution of tablet technology and wireless connectivity has enabled Digital Caddies, Inc., a golf-centric technology and information-dissemination company to leverage its extensive relationships and industry knowledge to create a golf technology platform that has a highly monetizable, audience collectively referred to as the Players Network. Digital Caddies is an informational medium that most notably enables advertisers to intimately engage one of the most attractive, and sought after demographics in the US - the country’s golfers and golf enthusiasts.

Digital Caddies connects golfers to advertisers by installing multifunctional web-enabled interactive tablets in golf cars that operate on and are owned by golf courses across the United States. These robust, Internet-connected interactive tablets provide a host of services to both golfers and golf courses alike. Once interactive tablets are installed on a golf course, players are provided with a number of engaging services and applications, such as GPS-based hole/course information, aerial views of fairways and green, accurate yardage information to hazards and greens. Future features will include, scoring applications, messaging platforms for cart to cart communication/scoring, the ability to wirelessly call for the beverage cart, plus news, weather, sports, entertainment and more. In addition, our platform provides a broad portfolio of course management tools designed to enable course managers to improve player pace of play via GPS-based cart tracking and communications, increased merchandise and concession sales via real-time on-tablet promotions, and access to additional revenue streams (e.g., sale of local advertising.)

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Principles of consolidation

The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of Digital Caddies, Inc. and its wholly owned subsidiaries of Digital Caddies (Canada), Inc., Digital Caddies (US), Inc. and Digital Caddies USA, LLC for the quarter ended April 30, 2017. All significant inter-company transactions and balances have been eliminated in consolidation.

Use of estimates

The preparation of these financial statements in accordance with United States generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenue and expenses in the reporting period. The Company regularly evaluates estimates and assumptions related to recoverability of long-lived assets, and deferred income tax asset valuations. The Company bases its estimates and assumptions on current facts, historical experience and various other factors that it believes to be reasonable under the circumstances, the results of which form the basis for making judgments about the carrying values of assets and liabilities and the accrual of costs and expenses that are not readily apparent from other sources. The actual results experienced by the Company may differ materially and adversely from the Company's estimates. To the extent there are material differences between estimates and the actual results, future results of operations will be affected.

Cash and cash equivalents

Cash and cash equivalents include certain investments with original maturities of three months or less, such as money market accounts. There are no cash equivalents as of April 30, 2017 and October 31, 2016.

Accounts receivable

Accounts receivable are reported at the amount management expects to collect from outstanding balances. Differences between the amount due and the amount management expects to collect are reported in the results of operations of the year in which those differences are determined, with an offsetting entry to a valuation allowance for trade accounts receivable. Balances that are still outstanding after management has used reasonable collection efforts are written off through a charge to the valuation allowance and a credit to accounts receivable. As of April 30, 2017 and October 31, 2016, the allowance for doubtful accounts totals $0 and $0, respectively.

Long-lived assets

In accordance with Financial Accounting Standards Board ("FASB") Accounting Standards Codification ("ASC") 360, Property, Plant and Equipment, the Company tests long-lived assets or asset groups for recoverability when events or changes in circumstances indicated that their carrying amount may not be recoverable. Circumstances which could trigger a review include, but are not limited to: significant decreases in the market price of the asset; significant adverse changes in the business climate or legal factors; accumulation of costs significantly in excess of the amount originally expected for the acquisition or construction of the asset; current period cash flow or operating losses combined with a history of losses or a forecast of continuing losses associated with the use of the asset; and a current expectation that the asset will more likely than not be sold or disposed significantly before the end of its estimated useful life.

Recoverability is assessed based on the carrying amount of the asset and its fair value which is generally determined based on the sum of the undiscounted cash flows expected to result from the use and the eventual disposal of the asset, as well as specific appraisal in certain instances. An impairment loss is recognized when the carrying amount is not recoverable and exceeds fair value. No impairment losses were recognized for the period ended April 30, 2017.

Revenue recognition & Major Customers

Revenue is recognized in accordance with SEC Staff Accounting Topic 13, "Revenue Recognition in Financial Statements". The Company recognizes revenue when the significant risks and rewards of ownership have been transferred to the customer pursuant to applicable laws and regulations, including factors such as when there has been evidence of a sales arrangement, delivery has occurred, or service have been rendered, the price to the buyer is fixed or determinable and collectability of the resulting receivable is reasonably assured.

The Company derives the majority of its revenue from the sale of advertising. As is the case with most advertising-based business models, our ability to attract advertisers, generate revenues and garner premium advertising rates (known as "Cost per Mille," "CPM" or cost per thousand impressions) will be highly dependent upon a number of key factors including: (i) the attractiveness and density of our primary demographic; (ii) the amount of reach and/or viewership; (iii) the dwell time (that is, how long a viewer looks at a particular screen); and (iv) the data (that is, what is known about a viewer and what information can be collected for the advertiser).

COSTS OF REVENUE

Costs of revenue are primarily related to the costs for wireless data we use to connect the network to the Web. Connectivity is required in order for the features of the network to function. Under the previous business model, the network needed to be built before advertising could be sold, so there was a negative margin. Under the new business model, the cost of the wireless connectivity will be transferred to each individual golf course dramatically reducing the cost of goods sold. Costs of Revenue going forward will primarily have a direct relation to revenue generated from advertising sales.

The costs of revenue also include the depreciation expense on the fixed assets.

Stock based compensation

ASC 718, "Accounting for Stock-Based Compensation" established financial accounting and reporting standards for stock-based employee compensation plans. It defines a fair value based method of accounting for an employee stock option or similar equity instrument. The Company accounts for compensation cost for share based payments to employees in accordance with ASC 718 and share based payments to non-employees in accordance with ASC 505-50 "Accounting for Equity Instruments Issued to Non-Employees for Acquiring, or in Conjunction with Selling, Goods or Services".

Derivative Financial Instruments

The Company evaluates its financial instruments to determine if such instruments are derivatives or contain features that qualify as embedded derivatives. For derivative financial instruments that are accounted for as liabilities, the derivative instrument is initially recorded at its fair value and is then re-valued at each reporting date, with changes in the fair value reported in the statements of operations. For stock-based derivative financial instruments, the Company uses a Black-Scholes option pricing model, in accordance with ASC 815-15 "Derivative and Hedging" to value the derivative instruments at inception and on subsequent valuation dates. The classification of derivative instruments, including whether such instruments should be recorded as liabilities or as equity, is evaluated at the end of each reporting period. Derivative instrument liabilities are classified in the balance sheet as current or non-current based on whether or not net-cash settlement of the derivative instrument could be required within 12 months of the balance sheet date.

Beneficial Conversion Features

Under ASC 470-20 "Debt with Conversion and Other Options" the intrinsic value of a beneficial conversion feature inherent to a convertible note payable, which is not bifurcated and accounted for separately from the convertible note payable and may not be settled in cash upon conversion, is treated as a discount to the convertible note payable. This discount is amortized over the period from the date of issuance to the date the note is due using the effective interest method. If the note payable is retired prior to the end of its contractual term, the unamortized discount is expensed in the period of retirement to interest expense. In general, the beneficial conversion feature is measured by comparing the effective conversion price, after considering the relative fair value of detachable instruments included in the financing transaction, if any, to the fair value of the common shares at the commitment date to be received upon conversion.

Advertising

Advertising costs are incurred in selling and general administration expenses, and are expensed when the advertising or promotion is published or presented to customers. Advertising, promotion and marketing programs are charged to operations in the period incurred.

Research and Development

Costs incurred in developing the ability to create and manufacture products for sale are included in research and development. Once a product is commercially feasible and starts to sell to third party customers, the classification of such costs as development costs stops and such costs are recorded as costs of production, which is included in cost of revenue. Research and development costs are expensed when incurred.

Basic and Diluted Net Loss Per Share

The computations of basic loss per share of common stock are based on the weighted average number of shares outstanding at the date of the financial statements. The Company computes net income (loss) per share in accordance with ASC 260. ASC 260 requires presentation of both basic and diluted earnings per share (EPS) on the face of the income statement. Basic EPS is computed by dividing net income (loss) available to common shareholders by the weighted average number of shares outstanding during the period. Diluted earnings (loss) per share is computed by dividing net income (loss) by the weighted average number of common shares outstanding plus common stock equivalents (if dilutive) related to stock options and warrants for each year.

Income Taxes

The Company accounts for income taxes utilizing ASC 740, "Income Taxes" (SFAS No. 109). ASC 740 requires the measurement of deferred tax assets for deductible temporary differences and operating loss carry forwards, and of deferred tax liabilities for taxable temporary differences. Measurement of current and deferred tax liabilities and assets is based on provisions of enacted tax law. The effects of future changes in tax laws or rates are not included in the measurement. The Company recognizes the amount of taxes payable or refundable for the current year and recognizes deferred tax liabilities and assets for the expected future tax consequences of events and transactions that have been recognized in the Company's financial statements or tax returns. The Company currently has substantial net operating loss carry forwards. The Company has recorded a 100% valuation allowance against net deferred tax assets due to uncertainty of their ultimate realization. Valuation allowances are established when necessary to reduce deferred tax assets to the amount expected to be realized.

Concentration of Credit Risk

Financial instruments which potentially subject the Company to concentrations of credit risk consist of cash and trade receivables. The Company places its cash with high credit quality financial institutions. At times such cash may be in excess of the FDIC limit. With respect to trade receivables, the Company routinely assesses the financial strength of its customers and, as a consequence, believes that the receivable credit risk exposure is limited.

Fair Value Measurements

As defined in ASC 820 "Fair Value Measurements", fair value is the price that would be received to sell an asset or paid to transfer a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date (exit price). The Company utilizes market data or assumptions that market participants would use in pricing the asset or liability, including assumptions about risk and the risks inherent in the inputs to the valuation technique.

These inputs can be readily observable, market corroborated, or generally unobservable. The Company classifies fair value balances based on the observability of those inputs. ASC 820 establishes a fair value hierarchy that prioritizes the inputs used to measure fair value. The hierarchy gives the highest priority to unadjusted quoted prices in active markets for identical assets or liabilities (level 1 measurement) and the lowest priority to unobservable inputs (level 3 measurement).

The three levels of the fair value hierarchy defined by ASC 820 are as follows:

Level 1 – Quoted prices are available in active markets for identical assets or liabilities as of the reporting date. Active markets are those in which transactions for the asset or liability occur in sufficient frequency and volume to provide pricing information on an ongoing basis. Level 1 primarily consists of financial instruments such as exchange-traded derivatives, marketable securities and listed equities.

Level 2 – Pricing inputs are other than quoted prices in active markets included in level 1, which are either directly or indirectly observable as of the reported date. Level 2 includes those financial instruments that are valued using models or other valuation methodologies. These models are primarily industry standard models that consider various assumptions, including quoted forward prices for commodities, time value, volatility factors, and current market and contractual prices for the underlying instruments, as well as other relevant economic measures. Substantially all of these assumptions are observable in the marketplace throughout the full term of the instrument, can be derived from observable data or are supported by observable levels at which transactions are executed in the marketplace. Instruments in this category generally include non-exchange-traded derivatives such as commodity swaps, interest rate swaps, options and collars.

Level 3 – Pricing inputs include significant inputs that are generally less observable from objective sources. These inputs may be used with internally developed methodologies that result in management's best estimate of fair value.

3. GOING CONCERN

The accompanying financial statements have been prepared on a going concern basis, which contemplates the realization of assets and satisfaction of liabilities in the normal course of business. Since inception, the Company has incurred losses and generated negative cash flow from operations. These factors, among others, raise substantial doubt about the Company's ability to continue as a going concern for a reasonable period of time.

If necessary, the Company will pursue additional equity and/or debt financing while managing cash flows from operations in an effort to provide funds to meet its obligations on a timely basis and to support future business development.

The financial statements do not contain any adjustments to reflect the possible future effects on the classification

Plan of Operations

The evolution of tablet technology and wireless connectivity has enabled Digital Caddies, Inc., a golf-centric technology and information-dissemination company to leverage its extensive relationships and industry knowledge to create a golf technology platform that has a highly monetizable, audience collectively referred to as The Players Network. Digital Caddies is an informational medium that most notably enables advertisers to intimately engage one of the most attractive, and sought after demographics in the US - the country's golfers and golf enthusiasts.

Digital Caddies connects golfers to advertisers by installing multifunctional web-enabled interactive tablets in golf cars that operate on and are owned by golf courses across the United States. These robust, Internet-connected interactive tablets provide a host of services to both golfers and golf courses alike. Once interactive tablets are installed on a golf course, players are provided with a number of interactive, engaging services and applications, such as GPS-based hole/course information, aerial views of fairways and green, accurate yardage information to hazards and greens. Future features will include, scoring applications, messaging platforms for cart to cart communication/scoring, the ability to wirelessly call for the beverage cart, plus news, weather, sports, entertainment and more

In addition, The Players Network provides a broad portfolio of course management tools designed to enable course managers to improve player pace of play via GPS-based car tracking and communications, potentially increase merchandise and concession sales via real-time on-tablet promotions, and access to additional revenue streams (e.g., sale of local advertising).

We expect to derive the majority of our revenue from the sale of advertising. As is the case with most advertising-based business models, our ability to attract advertisers, generate revenues and garner premium advertising rates will be highly dependent upon a number of key factors including: (i) the attractiveness and density of our primary demographic; (ii) the amount of reach and/or viewership; (iii) the dwell time (that is, how long a viewer looks at a particular screen); and (iv) the data (that is, what is known about a viewer and what information can be collected for the advertiser).

Given that we bring advertisers a highly homogenous, highly affluent audience, about which we will be able to collect highly valuable data, we believe that advertisers will be very interested in presenting their message on The Players Network. We further believe that as Digital Caddies expands, its attractiveness to advertisers will grow.

Company Strategy

The current popularity of golf integrated with the rising demand for interactive social media presents some very unique opportunities with a low risk / high reward approach. Using a strong disciplined business model, the Company utilize, conservative assumptions and careful assessment of downside scenarios before installing at a new golf course customer. By taking the guesswork out of the equation and pre-selling advertising before installing at a new location, the risks associated with growing the network will be greatly reduced.

The Company's twelve-month operational schedule entails a very disciplined plan of action of raising monies through several different avenues, focusing on direct sales and implementing their system at quality golf facilities as well as generating marketing and advertising through, traditional, and online web/social networking channels.

The Company's employee expansion will be directly related to the acquisition and management of our assets. We are unable to estimate or forecast that expansion at this time, as only the market will dictate our growth.

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities, the disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting periods.

We regularly evaluate the accounting policies and estimates that we use to prepare our financial statements. In general, management's estimates are based on historical experience, on information from third party professionals, and on various other assumptions that are believed to be reasonable under the facts and circumstances. Actual results could differ from those estimates made by management.

The Company derives the majority of its revenue from the sale of advertising. As is the case with most advertising-based business models, our ability to attract advertisers, generate revenues and garner premium advertising rates (known as "Cost per Mille," "CPM" or cost per thousand impressions) will be highly dependent upon a number of key factors including: (i) the attractiveness and density of our primary demographic; (ii) the amount of reach and/or viewership; (iii) the dwell time (that is, how long a viewer looks at a particular screen); and (iv) the data (that is, what is known about a viewer and what information can be collected for the advertiser).

Evolutionary Technology for Golf Courses

The evolution of tablet technology and wireless connectivity has enabled Digital Caddies, Inc., a golf-centric technology and information dissemination company, to leverage its extensive relationships and industry knowledge to create a golf technology platform that has a highly monetizable, audience collectively referred to as The Players Network. Digital Caddies interactive tablets are an informational medium that most notably enable advertisers to intimately engage one of the most attractive, and sought after demographics in the US - the country's golfers and golf enthusiasts. Digital Caddies are unique mobile golf information systems installed on golf carts that players rely on for course information during play. High quality interactive tablets allow players to access details on each hole while they play, and enjoy many additional benefits. Utilizing a Digital Caddie is like having a digital concierge right in the cart with the players throughout the round, so they use the equipment throughout every round of golf.

Digital Caddies' easy-to-use, interactive tablet-based technology platform installs on golf carts and connects to the web through a nationwide high-speed wireless network. Each tablet is securely mounted in the cart, where both occupants can clearly see the entire screen. The Players Network is a powerful tool for golf course operators to improve their guests' experiences, build guest loyalty, increase course revenue and lower operating costs. The content provided through the new tablet platform is specifically designed to promote interaction between the golfer and the device throughout their round and thus provides an excellent opportunity for course operators and advertisers to interact directly with golfers in ways that have never before been possible.

Product Features and Benefits

Solutions for Golfers

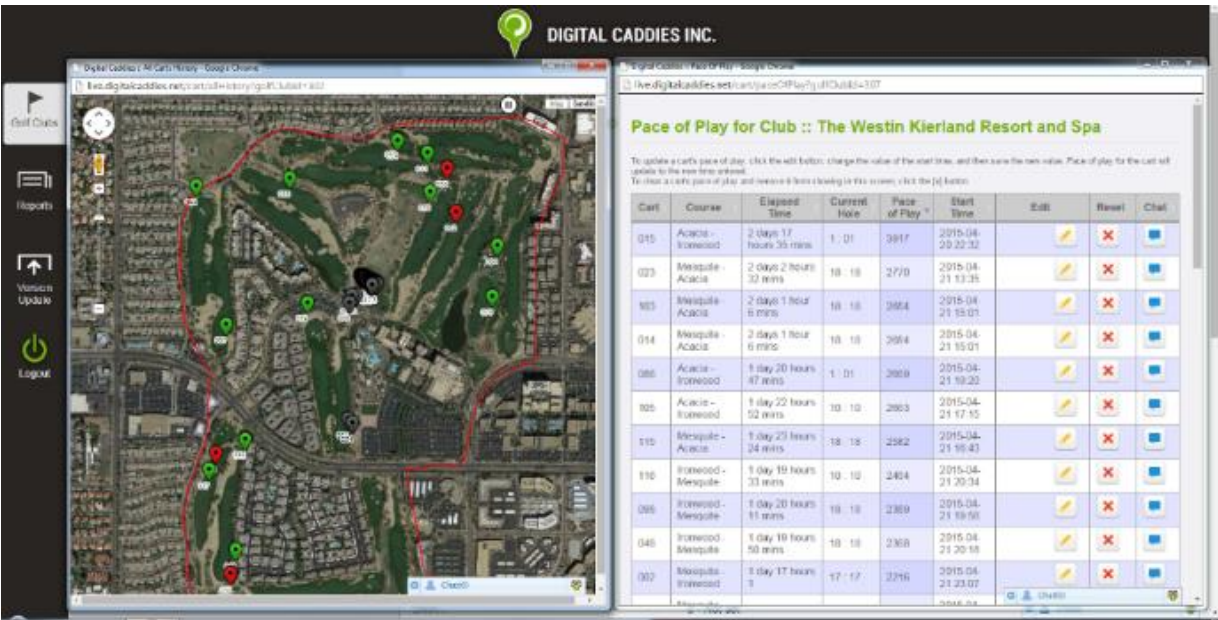

The Players Network connects golfers to advertisers by installing multifunctional web-enabled interactive tablets in golf carts that operate on our client golf courses. These Internet-connected interactive tablets are designed to provide a host of services to both golfers and golf courses alike. Once interactive tablets are installed on a golf course, players can be provided with a number of services and applications, such as GPS-based hole/course information, interactive maps to navigate distance information on the course to hazards or layout locations or to the green.

Solutions for Golf Courses

Most importantly, The Players Network provides a broad portfolio of course management tools designed to enable course managers to improve player pace of play via GPS-based cart tracking and communications. Through any web connected device, a golf course manager can view where every golf cart is on their golf course and communicate with the carts through a messaging system. This allows the golf course to better manage the pace of play on the golf course which is one of the most important factors in running a golf course and keeping golfers happy. The platform also provides a pace of play monitor so courses can easily see what groups might be falling behind the regular pace of play.

In addition, golf courses can use the system to potentially increase merchandise and concession sales via on-tablet advertising and promotion. Golf courses are also provided the opportunity to sell to local advertisers to add an additional revenue stream.

Sources of Revenue and Targeted Demographics

We expect to derive the majority of our revenue from the sale of advertising. As is the case with most advertising-based business models, our ability to attract advertisers, generate revenues and garner premium advertising rates will be highly dependent upon a number of key factors including: (i) the attractiveness and density of our primary demographic; (ii) the amount of reach and/or viewership; (iii) the dwell time (that is, how long a viewer looks at a particular screen); and (iv) the data (that is, what is known about a viewer and what information can be collected for the advertiser).

Golfer demographics are highly desirable. Well educated, motivated and active, they enjoy above average income and high levels of disposable income. Given that we bring advertisers a highly homogenous, highly affluent audience, about which we will be able to collect highly valuable data, we believe that advertisers will be very interested in presenting their message on The Players Network. We further believe that as the network expands, its attractiveness to advertisers will grow. The Players Network puts our advertisers in direct contact with active golfers - not at random times of day, but when they are actually playing the game. Best of all, our advertisers will be reaching them while they are relaxed and will have these potential customers at their fingertips for hours at a time.

Current Commitments and Our Future

We first launched the beta version of the Digital Caddies platform in November 2013 and the formal launch was in mid 2014. We firmly believe that the quality of the Digital Caddies platform and our expertise in the Golf GPS industry will allow us to achieve our goals and eventually enable us to become the market leader in providing Golf GPS solutions to golf courses allowing us the opportunity to establish a very valuable advertising network.

Distribution Methods of the Products or Services

The Company's products are distributed nationwide through direct sales representatives and third party distribution companies for full scale implementation at golf courses, resorts and country clubs.

Competitive Business Conditions, the Issuer's Competitive Position in the Industry, and Methods of Competition;

The Golf GPS Market is competitive and is primarily composed of two segments: (i) companies that offer golf GPS systems directly to consumers; and (ii) companies that offer golf GPS systems directly to businesses.

We consider our biggest competitors to be other companies that currently offer golf GPS systems directly to golf courses because businesses, such as resorts, country clubs, etc., have different needs than individual golfers and these systems feature many of the same functions we provide. However, because there are over 15,000 golf courses in the United States, we believe that the market has not yet reached saturation we believe we will be able to continue to grow our course installation base providing us the opportunity to build a valuable advertising network.

Sources and Availability of Raw Materials and the Names of Principal Suppliers

Although most components essential to the Company's business are generally available from multiple sources, certain key components, including, but not limited to, microprocessors, power units, certain liquid crystal displays ("LCDs"), and certain application-specific integrated circuits ("ASICs") are currently obtained by the Company from single or limited sources, which subjects the Company to supply and pricing risks. Many of these and other key components that are available from multiple sources, including, but not limited to, NAND flash memory, dynamic random access memory ("DRAM"), GPS chipsets and certain LCDs, are subject at times to industry-wide shortages and commodity pricing fluctuations.

Dependence on One or a Few Major Customers

The Company does not depend on any one or on a few major customers/prospective customers as there are over 15,000 golf courses in the United States. In addition, advertising revenue is expected to come from multiple sources and with millions of available advertisers the company does not expect to be dependent on any one advertiser.

Patents, Trademarks, Licenses, Franchises, Concessions, Royalty Agreements or Labor Contracts

The Company does not currently hold any specific patents, trademarks, franchises, concessions, royalty agreements or labor contracts. However, the Company has applied for a trademark in connection with "The Players Network."

The Need for any Government Approval of Principal Products or Services and the Status of any Requested Government Approvals

The telecommunications industry is highly regulated, and the regulatory environment in which the Company operates is subject to change. In accordance with Federal Communications Commission ("FCC") rules and regulations, wireless transceiver and cellular handset products are required to be certified by the FCC and comparable authorities in foreign countries where they are sold. Any of the Company's products that might be sold in Europe will be required to comply with relevant directives of the European Commission. A delay in receiving required certifications for new products, or enhancements to the Company's products, or losing certification for the Company's existing products could adversely affect our business.

The Effect of Existing or Probable Governmental Regulations on the Business

The telecommunications industry is highly regulated, and the regulatory environment in which the Company operates is subject to change. In accordance with Federal Communications Commission ("FCC") rules and regulations, wireless transceiver and cellular handset products are required to be certified by the FCC and comparable authorities in foreign countries where they are sold. A delay in receiving required certifications for new products, or enhancements to the Company's products, or losing certification for the Company's existing products could adversely affect the business.

Time Spent on Research and Development Activities

The Company's product innovations are often outsourced to engineering and manufacturing teams. These engineering and development companies create the Company's products. Digital Caddies, Inc. believes the design of its products has played an important role in the Company's success and that utilizing outsourcing methods can keep overhead low and maintain good relationships with suppliers.

The Costs and Effects of Compliance with Environmental Laws (federal, state, and local)

The Company's operations themselves are not subject to various environmental laws, including laws addressing air and water pollution and management of hazardous substances and wastes, because we outsource most of our product development.

The Number of Total Employees and Number of Full-time Employees

The Company currently has 3 full-time employees/consultants, not including independent sales consultants.
