Estimations to calculate the Potential Oil Reserves underlining our properties in the Bend Arch-Fort Worth Basin Province are based on volumetric calculations. Based on approximately 12,000 acres of proven and unproven undeveloped fields, assuming 500 feet thickness of this play is oil pay and an average potential production of those fields, the potential volume of recoverable reserves were calculated. It is worth mentioning that the thickness chosen is required to accurately count net effective reservoir quality (e.g. shale or sand) and it is also used to construct net pay isochoric maps for volumetric reserve calculations.

Please refer to: Geologic Documentation by SCA to expand on thickness determination for volumetric calculations and the Bend Arch-Fort Worth Basin Province (045) study by the USGS to obtain further explanation on the characteristics of the Bend Arch-Fort Worth Basin Province and the thickness of oil pay in this area.
