Part C Business Information

Item- 8 The nature of the issuer's business.

A. Business Development

PTA Holdings Inc. (PTAH) is a holding company doing business in the for-hire transportation industry. The Company acquired Kingsley Logistics Group in June of 2012. Kingsley is a multi-faceted transportation group and will be providing a broad array of traditional transportation services that include LTL & Truckload, Inter-modal, Rail, Warehousing & Distribution, Equipment Leasing, Brokerage and 3PL, plus Retail & Special Projects Business Groups.

The Kingsley Logistic Group business model is designed to add real and measurable value throughout the customer's supply chain designed to create a business advantage in the marketplace. The Company acquired Nortford, LLP, an Iowa based transportation company in December of 2012 and Eggspress, LLP an Iowa based refrigerated motor carrier during the 1st quarter of 2013, a sister company of Nortford. During August of 2014 the company took direct control of Nortford and Eggspress as required by the transaction with TCA Global Master Credit Fund, L. P.

The Kingsley business model will be the company's strategy for future growth featuring its logistics management strategy and outsourcing certain trucking services in combination with its own trucking operation. Pro Flow is no longer associated with PTA Holdings. See item 16 for explanation.

Item- 9 The nature of products or services offered.

A. (Principle products or services, and their markets); B. (distribution methods of the products and services); C. (status of any publicly announced new product or service); D. (competitive business conditions, the issuer’s competitive position in the industry, and methods of competition); E. (sources and availability of raw materials and the names of principle suppliers); F. (dependence on one or a few major customers).

PTA Holdings, Inc as a result of its acquisition of the Kingsley Logistics Group provides trucking, inter-modal, brokerage, logistics and warehousing services and related services as a result of its roll-up strategy.

The company is committed to developing freight hauling efficiencies and synergies within the transport group as a result of the synergies it will deploy throughout its system.

Kingsley is positioned to take advantage of the transportation industry’s growing trend toward global logistics, distribution and supply chain management, paying attention to the acquisition of small to medium sized companies that we define generating revenues of 2.0 to 20 million of annual revenues. The company will use a combination of transportation software, website technology, the roll-up of supply chain subsidiaries, including truck and inter-modal transportation units, warehousing and storage facilities, logistics management and related technology functions. Domestic and global marketing strategies will be deployed to generate exceptional revenue and profits by providing the benefit of our systems and management expertise to those companies in our system and the customers served.

By any standard of measurement, the trucking industry continues to dominate the freight transportation market. Nearly every product consumed is transported by truck at some point in time. According to market statistics, the trucking market hauled 67.9% or 8.9 billion tons of all freight transported in the United States. The trucking industry earned $585 billion of that amount representing 86.5% of the nation’s freight bill. In other words trucking on average, collected 86.5 cents on every dollar spent of freight transportation. For-hire (truckload and less than truckload) and private carriage together accounted for these tonnage and revenue amounts.

Before the motor carrier industry was deregulated in 1980, there were fewer than 20,000 interstate carriers in the United States. By the end of 2002 that number increased to more than 585,000. While there are a large number of trucking companies, the vast majority are operated as a small business. Around 93% of those companies operate with fewer than 20 trucks and approximately 80% operate six trucks or less. As a consequence, trucking is a highly fragmented industry, resulting in intense competition (in terms of price and non-price factors) and low profit margins. The recession starting in 2008 and continuing to this date, and, the extremely high cost of diesel fuel, along with the environmental restrictions these companies face has many of them looking for a ‘safe-harbor’. Kingsley Logistic Technologies is a company poised and ready to execute the consolidation of some of those companies that meet Kingsley roll-up criteria. This sector will create exceptional opportunities for the company.

“Kingsley companies, with their combined elements of supply chain functions, position our organization to provide a suite of services dedicated to our customers’ unique requirements while maintaining control of operating costs of business units.”

- Kingsley within its operating supply chain functions, offers a complete end-to-end integrated approach to address the entire supply chain cycle from start to finish. Each solution integrates seamlessly with existing dispatch and mobile communications systems for fast implementation and for maximizing the return on its technology investments. Each module is engineered to create greater efficiencies and savings in concert with the other. Our most recent example of this strategic change is the relationship established between Montana Trucking, Inc. our Nortford operation and Brecht Trucking, Inc to provided accelerated freight shipping, and controlling the cost of operation by outsourcing various functions for that purpose.

G. Patents, trademarks, licenses, franchises, concessions, royalty agreements or labor contracts, including their duration;

The company operates within perimeters established by the US Department of transportation regarding; licenses, insurance and operating authority.

H. and the need for any government approval of principle products or services and the status of any requested government approvals.

See (G) above.

Answers to the above points in Item 16:

The Agreement between Kingsly Consulting Corporation (KCC) and Ted Leverette II, required that KCC merge its Kingsley Logistics Group into PTAH, and Leverette would exchange the assets of ProFlo and its liabilities and surrender 51 million shares of common stock to the company. The accounting for this transaction is reflected herein, giving effect that ProFlo is a private business, and will be completed by the 4th quarter of 2013. The transaction eliminates the operating losses and debt of ProFlo, which are assumed by Leverette. Pro Flo has not been profitable for several years.

The critical issue for transportation companies facing competition is to know their costs as a way to take advantage of economic times and especially during periods of economic down-turns. Technology developments are driving increased productivity in most industry including the transportation sector and technology is the driving force within Kingsley companies.

The company will seek debt and equity financing from private investment partners to facilitate the roll-up of the Transportation Units, 3PL, Broker and Warehousing operations.

Additional capital will be required for operations at the corporate level and to fund software development. The company has embarked upon a defined cost restructure program and supported by TCA Global Fund that will result in increased revenue producing operations and eliminating unforeseen costs that often occur with trucking, this as a result of the strategic operations agreement between the company, its primary customer and outsourcing its Dispatch operation for control of fleet operations.

2. Interim Periods. Provide a comparable discussion that will enable the reader to access material changes in financial condition and results of operations since the end of the last fiscal year and for comparable interim period in the preceding year.

The Acquisition of Kingsley Logistics Group moving the company from a producer of motor vehicle additives to a one of being a For-Hire Vendor of transportation services has dramatically increased the potential for increasing revenues and profits. Therefore we do not believe the “comparable discussion” referred to above has merit, other than to refer to past business that will no longer be the objective of the company. We encountered unexpected business related headwinds late in 2014 and through the first and second quarters of 2015. This situation was countered by our team including the support of our funding unit to re-establish viable and predictable business operations for the shipment of freight and initially for our strategic customer and its transportation related units. This action will better assure visibility and control over fleet operating costs AND returning business operations to a central location based in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

C. Off-Balance Sheet Arrangements. -----None
