Camarillo, CA.

On4 Communications, Inc. (OTCPK: ONCI) announced today that its QwickMed division is rapidly moving forward to complete the tailoring of individual sales programs for each of its target markets. Timothy Owens, CEO, says “We see boy scouts in front of stores displaying popcorn and girl scouts displaying cookies and mints. We take a totally different approach. We provide usable medical items for home, auto, pet and travel. These are essential items that never seem to be around when you need them. Also, our products have real lasting value, so the non-profit groups who use them for their fundraising programs experience significantly higher and recurring sales. Our products are uniquely designed in one durable space container that fits in any car trunk, desk or bathroom cabinet. In addition, our website will also contain supporting first aid links to assist in treating minor medical issues.”

Our QwickMed division is entering its program sales phase tailored for each market segment we enter. We view our customers as business partners and we are focused on providing the best possible products and services for each non-profit group we serve.
