Hat Trick Beverages (HKBV) Confirmation Of Previous News Release Transaction With Hi Health

Toronto Canada September 25, 2008 The issuer Hat Trick Beverages (HKBV) through their Investor Relations company, The Investors Line and the issuers corporate advisor Mina Mar Group has received a number of queries of certain false and misleading rumors that have began circulating earlier today on certain short sellers safe heaven blog web site known as "Investors Hub". Amongst other things, a supposedly current shareholder claims that they contacted Hi Health and were advised that no contract exists between Hat Trick Beverages and Hi Health. The issuer is using this filing to denounce such rumors, and affirm the validity of the agreement.

The issuer hat Trick Beverages affirms and confirms to its shareholders that this contract in fact exists and is in a good and valid state. The issuer is enclosing a true copy of an e mail exchange between the corporate advisor and the issuer which is self explanatory. Just so that there is no confusion Larry Twombly is the XCEO of Hat Trick beverages (HKBV) (who arranged the contract) and currently acting in a capacity with Hat Tricks cold drinks division as Executive Vice President. Miro Zecevic of Mina Mar Group is the corporate advisor to the issuer Hat Trick Beverages and the buyer's name at Hi Health (which contract is the target of the false rumor) is Mike Gleela.

The issuer again reminds its shareholders and followers not to rely upon the rumors spread by these posters especially on this well known blog web site that specializes in these types of activities. The issuer asks its followers to visit the Pink Sheets.Com for news and filings as the official source of information and not the chat boards that are dressed up as "informative sources" which are known to delete factual posts and allow false and misleading ones to flourish.

The issuer intends to join in its corporate advisor in the currently pending law suit against this blog site Investors Hub as it sees no other alternative to stop these malicious and vindictive practices, in order to protect its shareholders.

Larry;

Looks like our friends over at that Investors Hub are at it again. Someone posted that the deal with Hi Health is a no deal etc etc.. See their post and email that was forwarded to us and the guys over at Investors Line.

Please contact your distributor and get their info. Maybe we can post as a filing the contract (just black out the names) on Pink Sheets and the purchase order. It is childish I know but this is what we are dealing with. Sorry, it is what it is.

We tried to reach this Investors Hub blog but no luck as usual. I doubt it that they will remove any false and misleading posts in any event. No serious investors take that board serious but nonetheless the novice shareholders (ones they target) will drop their stock on this rumor and drive the price down. Once we correct the rumor they will profit from it, and do it again. We are going to try to rain them in we are about 99% done with the law suit in Canada. Another one is en route in UK and California. California one has laws that can hold shareholders liable.

Anyhow we will fight that battle another day, but right now let's show these guys that what they are doing is wrong and malicious. You guys have a huge following of shareholders that need to be protected so the quicker you get back to us the faster we can act and assist you on this.

Hopefully we can stop this slide.

Thanks

Miro

Miro;

I spoke to the distributor about 15 min. ago. He is on it. The buyer's name at Hi Health is Mike Gleela.

The distributor assured me that Mike will talk to all involved and make sure everyone knows what is going on.
