4) Issuer’s Business, Products and Services

The purpose of this section is to provide a clear description of the issuer’s current operations. (Please ensure that these descriptions are updated on the Company’s Profile on www.otcmarkets.com).

A. Summarize the issuer’s business operations (If the issuer does not have current operations, state “no operations”)

As a result of the consummation on October 6, 2022 of the transactions contemplated by the Share Exchange Agreement dated July 26, 2022 with M.E.A. Testing Systems Ltd., a company formed under the laws of the State of Israel (“MEA”), and shareholders representing 89.6% of the issued and outstanding shares of MEA (the “MEA Shareholders”), MEA became a subsidiary of the Company. MEA develops, manufactures and supplies an extensive array of testing solutions and instruments relating to the power of motors for various markets, including electric vehicles and their components, transportation and the home appliance industries. MEA offers unique combined solutions and simulations that integrate our special unique dynamic and static capabilities with traditional dynamometer methods that measure force or power. Dynamometers are testing benches used to test the physical parameters of the motor-like speed, torque, efficiency and power of the motor.

B. List any subsidiaries, parent company, or affiliated companies.

MEA Testing Systems Ltd., a company formed under the laws of the State of Israel

Motomova Ltd (Previously: Petrocorp Israel Ltd.), a company formed under the laws of the State of Israel and is wholly owned the Company.

MEA Motomova India Private Limited., a company formed under the laws of India.

MEA USA INC, a company formed under the laws of Delaware, US

C. Describe the issuers’ principal products or services.

MEA manufactures two types of dynamometers – the Regenerative Dynamometer System (RDS) – which is the “classic” industry product where a loading motor is used in order to load the motor being tested. The loading motor is used to bring the tested motor to full speed and then forces are applied on the tested motor to test the power, speed, torque and efficiency of the motor. During the application of those forces the parameters and indicators of the tested motor are measured and used to evaluate its condition and performance.

The second dynamometer we developed is the proprietary Inertial Dynamometer System (IDS). This product allows a motor to be tested without a loading motor; this saves time, money and resources. The IDS provides similar testing performance capabilities as the RDS by "calculating" the performance indicators of the tested engine based on parameters measured during the acceleration and deceleration phases of the motor. The IDS can be used to test any electric motor, but it saves the need of a loading motor. Clients mainly request the IDS to test "special" motors – very small or very large motors or motors that are very strong or very fast – where loading motors are unavailable.

In addition, MEA develops and offers additional testing solutions used to test additional components or parts that connect to the motor like batteries (power supply) and gear.

MEA's products can be used to test all types of electric motors, both in the transportation market and for industrial applications. In addition, they can be used in the design and planning phase of a motor (in the lab) for R&D purposes or in production mode - End of Line testing (EOL). Some of MEA products are used by Official Standards Institutes and Educational Institutes.

MEA has a current patent (U.S. Patent No. US 6,591,200 B1) covering certain of its proprietary methods and systems for dynamic testing of loaded or unloaded electrical rotating electric motors.

MEA manufactures its products in Netanya, Israel. MEA purchases the different parts and hardware used for the dynamometers from suppliers around the world and assembles them in their shop. In addition, MEA's proprietary software is installed in the dynamometer and is used to manage the operation of the dynamometers and as an interface for the operator who can use it for different test cycles, configuration and test output.

The Company has an accumulated deficit in the total amount of $16,681,377 as of June 30, 2025, the Company has negative operating cash flow, further losses are anticipated in the development of its business. The accompanying condensed consolidated financial statements have been prepared assuming the Company will continue as a going concern, which contemplates the realization of assets and liabilities and commitments in the normal course of business.

The consolidated financial statements for the period ended June 30, 2025, do not include any adjustments to reflect the possible future effects on the recoverability and classification of assets or the amounts and classification of liabilities that may result from uncertainty related to the Company's ability to continue as a going concern.
