Canadian Bio Med Systems, Inc. is developing a drug to help cure the leading cause of blindness for persons over 50 years of age, age-related macular degeneration.

Wet age-related macular degeneration (AMD) is one of the leading causes of severe vision loss and blindness in the adult population. In the United States, there are more than 1.6 million cases of wet AMD and approximately 200,000 new cases of wet AMD are reported each year. A majority of wet AMD patients experience dramatic vision loss within months after diagnosis. Because AMD generally affects adults over 50 years of age, it is expected that the incidence of AMD will increase as the baby-boom generation ages and life expectancy increases and it has been estimated by the National Eye Institute that by 2030, an estimated 2.8 million Americans will suffer from visual impairment as a result of AMD.

Although the companies have met with several potential investment partners to date no deal has been reached.

Once the initial investment is completed the company can apply for matching grants from the Canadian Government.
