

Evader changes name to Critic Clothing, Inc. with the symbol CRCT as the company gears up for its big push in 2016

MOUNT SINAI, N.Y., December 16, 2015 – Critic Clothing, Inc. (OTCPink: CRCT), formerly Evader, Inc., today announced that the company has been approved by FINRA for a name change to Critic Clothing, Inc. in order to better describe the company's business. The change took effect Monday December 14th at the market open.

The name change has been a long time coming, since Evader acquired Critic Clothing over a year ago. Management was waiting until the right time to make the change in order to align with the plans to fully launch the project, and as 2016 approaches, the feeling was that the time was now right. Building its business model, networking, and refining its brand during 2015, Critic Clothing has just touched the tip of the iceberg as far as what the company has in store. Critic brought on several professional sports stars, and refined its image in order to get the ball rolling and spread the critic message, which states that criticism should be embraced as a catalyst to success.

Now that the company has a name more fitting to the business, the company can move forward with its plans to dominate its niche in the clothing industry. The Sports pros on board are just the beginning and Critic Clothing CEO, Alec Simione has big plans that should soon be revealed as we head into the New Year. For the past several months, Critic has been quietly networking and building a distribution list of smaller niche stores and distributors that service them. The company is also targeting at least one major big box retailer with a special promotional line that is planned with the sponsorship of a major name in professional sports.

Company CEO, Alec Simione commented, "The time has come that Critic must launch itself into the stratosphere or die on the vine. The first quarter of 2016, we are going to push like our lives depend on it and make this company a nationwide or even a global phenomenon. This is my dream, and I am not accepting anything less than total success." Most recently the company put out its Signature Series shirts that have unique designs created by and with pro athletes and contain their autograph printed on the clothing. This is something very unique to critic and has been received extremely well by consumers. Next in line shareholders and customers alike can expect many more celebrity and pro athlete sponsors, special events, promotional stunts, and more. One thing is clear, and that is that if you have been following Critic Clothing, you haven't seen anything yet.
