PBS's AI-powered agents and automation technologies are expected to play a central role in improving operational efficiency, reducing manual processes, and enhancing workflow execution across freight brokerage, carrier operations, and back-office administration. PBS intends to leverage its technology platform and, subject to the completion of a public offering, its publicly traded equity to support future asset and revenue-generating acquisitions.

"The completion of the spin-out and merger of CAVR's subsidiary PBS Recon, Inc. and Post.Bid.Ship., Inc., together with the execution of a letter of intent with a logistics and delivery company operating across four states with approximately $12 million in annual revenue, represents a meaningful first step in fulfilling our commitment to our shareholders. We have substantially eliminated all of CAVR's convertible debt, with one remaining obligation currently in active settlement negotiations. We said we would clean up CAVR's balance sheet, and we have. We are now positioned to pursue additional strategic spin-outs and mergers that we believe will create long-term value for our shareholders," said William Robinson, Chief Executive Officer of CAVU Resources, Inc.
