About

I am a seasoned business development professional with a global reach that spans across continents like the Americas, Europe, and Asia. Over the course of my extensive career, I've refined my proficiency in a range of domains, including business development, financial and organizational restructuring, government relations, and strategic advancement. My operational experience encompasses a wide array of industries, from banking, oil and gas, and industrial real estate to pharmacy, mining, and most recently, the conception of carbon offset projects in the Least Developed Countries of Africa.

During my tenure in the mining sector, I undertook pivotal roles in projects crucial to the Green Energy Revolution. These endeavors comprised the discovery of a significant Copper deposit in Kyrgyzstan and the management of a Lithium brownfield project in Russia. My leadership played a decisive role in driving initiatives in collaboration with companies listed on the TSX and OTC exchanges.

In the year 2022, I embarked on a journey to West Africa, delving into new opportunities in mining with a specific focus on Clean Energy metals. This expedition led me to unveil the most efficacious approach for curtailing greenhouse gas emissions – Carbon Offset projects. These initiatives, encompassing Improved Cookstoves, Reforestation, Agro-forestry, BioChar, and more, emerged as potent instruments for reducing emissions.

At present, I derive immense pride from my role as a co-founder of Carbonibus, a pioneering force in the realm of carbon project development, deeply entrenched and actively engaged in the field. Our impact resonates in Liberia, where we inaugurated the initial clean cookstove initiative in early 2023. The outcomes have been nothing short of extraordinary, benefiting the local community through deforestation mitigation and notably enhancing the lives of women and children. Families who adopt our clean cooking technology experience savings of up to 60% in fuel costs, affording them the ability to allocate more resources towards nourishment and education for their children.

A cornerstone of our endeavors lies in the distribution of improved cookstoves, a pivotal measure in safeguarding forests, given that charcoal production significantly contributes to deforestation in the Upper Guiney Rain Forest. Furthermore, our team remains actively committed to exploring additional avenues for carbon initiatives within Liberia and the neighboring ECOWAS countries.
