8000 Inc. (EIGH.pk) Statement to Shareholders May 25, 2011

The SEC has previously confirmed the existence of short positions existing in EIGH.pk, a stock not eligible for short sales, confirming brokerage admissions. Using verified shareholding and certified shareholder records, we believe an empirical count of the minimum short position existing can be proven. The records of only 13 brokerages were used and in our opinion confirmed a minimum short position of over 16MM shares.

Due to the belief by the Company in the naked short position held in the stock of 8000 Inc. (EIGH.pk), and the exceptional relationship and support received from its shareholders, the Company has engaged in an analysis which we are convinced establishes empirically the true minimum naked short position in EIGH.pk and to ascertain finally whether or not it exists. We expect, if one will take the time to look at the data and not the messenger, this analysis will hold up.

Data

The data used for the analysis is the transfer agent, ("TA"), certified Shareholder report and the verified and testimonies shareholder account records. Both sets of data are deemed to be accurate and the highest number of shares recorded by broker when the data is compared is taken as the absolute shareholding. It is assumed that no one would assume neither brokerage or shareholder would claim to hold more shares than they actually hold and as stated, this is confirmed either through certified and verified records. As the Company is only assessing the difference, the analysis only identifies shares greater than the total number of shares issued by the company confirmed through the TA certified records.

This analysis compares differences between the certified TA records and the shareholder count for only 13 brokerages and the shares held within their accounts evidenced by shareholder records and testimony. Those brokerages being, E*Trade, Fidelity/National Financial, Merrill Lynch, Option Express, Penson, Pershing, RBC Dominion, Schwab, Scottrade, TDA, USAA, Vanguard and Wells Fargo

Please note, 13MM shares are being cancelled through the rescinding of the Southbridge and Sky Villas acquisitions in line with the Company's new business focus.

Any difference between the two sets of figures (just the 13 brokers!) is then added to the total as any certified record of a greater number must be correct based on the certified records and only counting 60% of the total number of share holders.

Process

Verified short position for only 60% of the shareholders is the total number of shares accounted for minus the total number of shares issued by the Company - 16,041,980

Used the TA certified report for all other recorded brokers holding EIGH stock and representing 40% of the total number of shareholders of 8000 Inc

Simply adding the total number of conformed and demonstrable shares held in shareholder accounts shown through account details and testimony, plus the accepted total number of shares held in the brokerages not included in the shareholder count and then adding the difference between the 13 brokers figures in the shareholder count and the TA records will give the total minimum number of shares sold or available in the market. Taking the confirmed number of shares issued away from the total count will give the absolute minimum naked short position based on 60% of the shareholders and only 13 brokerages.

Total shareholding by shareholders using only those figures that could be unquestionably proven

(A) 136,379,047

Total held by non-counted shareholder brokers

(B) 10,251,585

Positive difference between the 13 brokerages counted for the shareholders and the certified records provided by the TA for the 13 brokerages. Simply, the higher number recorded on the TA report must be correct

(C) 21,236,048

8000inc

Total number of shares verified and accounted for (verified shareholder count plus certified TA figures for the 13 brokers plus the positive difference ((A) + (B) +(C))

(D) 167,866,680

The data for this analysis is available through the TA and the Company all of which has been supplied or can be supplied again to the regulators.

Assumptions:

- Assuming as we do for this analysis that (i) the shareholder records and written testimony are true and (ii) using the "TA" "certified" shareholder records (that is, the mandatory TA record of shares held by named individuals and brokers), then it can only be assumed that any difference between the two sets of figures must be added to the total number of shares counted. Simply, any greater verified figure must be deemed as more reliable as the data from both sets are verified and can be established as fact as given. (iii) The figure calculated can only be assumed to be the minimum naked short position held in EIGH.pk, as the analysis only uses the facts from 13 brokerages and from 60% of the shareholders. (iv) It is assumed that the certified TA records provided by the brokerages and the shareholder records with copies of account positions and testimony are accurate and based on only 60% of the shareholders figures used, the greater number is assumed as the correct figure. (iv) It is assumed that the illegal practice of naked shorting is not recorded officially and absolutely not made available to the regulators and public alike and thus those naked short positions are not included in this analysis and will undoubtedly in the Company opinion be significant assuming as stated by the SEC, there are short positions held in EIGH.pk. (v) It is also assumed that if a fair and orderly market then the indentified naked short position based on facts will be zero.

Data Excluded:

To clarify, this analysis does not include the records of 45 brokers, 40% of the total number of shareholders, listed on the certified TA reports of shareholders and records, there is an excess, or (we believe) naked short or stock imbalance or discrepancy of 16,041,980 shares being sold and recorded. Furthermore, these figures do not include the shares sold to the public that are not available or recorded in any system or documentation that is either available to the SEC, the Company or the shareholders.

8000inc

Key Points:

- There are now 101 distinct named brokers and individual named entities holding shares/certificates in EIGH.pk.
- Based on the above analysis in “Assumptions above, if a broker claims to hold a higher number of shares than has been counted by the Company, then it is assumed they are right. [Isn’t this an assumption, unless better tied into the above Assumptions analysis?]
- Based on the above analysis in “Assumptions” above, If the Company’s shareholder count by broker, evidenced by shareholder records and written testimony to confirm their shareholdings, is greater, then that is assumed to be correct
- The two points above ensure equal treatment accepting that only proven records are accepted and allowing for the certified records to correct any discrepancies.
- No interpretation, assumptions or opinion other than the statements of treatment above are made.

Findings:

1. The total number of common shares issued by the Company is 151,824,700 (13,000,000 are in the process of being cancelled relating to two cancelled acquisitions)
2. The difference between the total number of shares claimed by the brokers assessed using the shareholder records and the certified TA records is 21,236,048
3. Using only the verified figures for just 60% of the total number of EIGH.pk shareholders and only the certified figures for 13 brokerages, the minimum number of EIGH.pk shares counted in the market is 167,866,680
4. Therefore the minimum empirical number of naked shorts held in EIGH.pk (based on factual records from the TA Brokers and Shareholders is 16,041,980 being confirmed and verified.

In the Company's opinion (and based on shareholder communications with not less than 250 shareholders), there can be only one explanation to the above data: there is an illegal naked short position held in the stock of EIGH.pk. Which EIGH estimates at not less than 100,000,000 shares? Is it not time for the SEC and/or FINRA to address the issues, to take action, to prove either the Company or its shareholders are wrong or more importantly to deal with a situation that goes to the core of the SEC's mission, if not existence?

We submit that it will be hard, if not impossible, to argue against these facts and this analysis. The Company has diligently provided the information, its opinion and evidence. Notwithstanding being maligned based on the Consent the Company is quite prepared to enter into relating to its prior careless press releases, the figures and diagrams issued within this statement are based on facts and, we submit, are unassailable; we believe that all non-provable, incomplete, inexact or interpretative data has been removed. The Company, its CEO and its consultant state categorically that any shorting is not due to their actions, participation or condoning and, in fact, challenge the SEC and/or FINRA to prove otherwise! The figures and the facts are based specifically on the maximum provable and demonstrable figures provided by the affected [named] brokers and the Company. No figure is included that, in our considered judgment, cannot be proven. Therefore, the conclusion of 21,258,862 naked short shares sold in 8000 Inc. can be relied upon, in our opinion, the minimal number of naked shares sold to the public.

We ask the SEC to take action as this information suggests (and, in our opinion prove). We believe the SEC and the public have been misled, probably defrauded and your rules (and those of FINRA) have been ignored. And for those reasons plead that the SEC and/or FINRA require a buy-in and/or take other pre-emptive regulatory action that will reverse this fraud upon both EIGH specifically and, more generally, public markets.

Candidly, we believe the only reason the Company could establish this analysis is its close relationship with its shareholders who are as incensed about this fraud. Moreover, this has led to the trail between cooperating brokers that suggests that they would not and do not report illegal naked shorting in any available format at other than internally, thereby successfully hiding behind REGSHO and SEC records. As an example, the Company asked E*Trade to clarify its naked short positions. One would assume as E*Trade is a self clearing firm as well as an on-line brokerage; they would use their own internal services. Why then when specifically asked of E*Trade did E*Trade include Ridge clearing into the communication and that asks then question why does a clearing firm use the services of another clearing form for the purchase of stock through its own E*Trade client accounts? Should the Company ask E*Trade how many shares does it hold in its E*Trade client accounts and how many shares does it hold in its client accounts routed though external clearing such as Ridge? And why does E*Trade blatantly admit a short position in a stock ineligible for short sales, include Ridge clearing into the conversation and the SEC quotes a figure 6 times less? Does this not suggest that the records provided publicly by the brokerages are inaccurate, not true, misleading and or hidden and camouflaged?
