What's the difference?

503B Manufacturer vs. 503A Pharmacy

01

Legality

In office non-patient specific use allowing for clinic flexibility with multi patient vials

02

Product Quality

Leveraging a automated manufacturing process and certified DMF raw materials reduces product inconsistency or quality issues

03

Turnaround

Large batch size production reduces product shortages and improves shipping times

04

Additives

No additives, salt bases or vitamins. Consistent potency allowing for better patient management.

503B
Manufacturer

VS

503A
Pharmacy

01

Legality

Patient specific medication increasing turnaround times and missed doses. Also, single patients vials create potential for product waste.

02

Product Quality

FDA allowance for greater variance in product effectiveness. Human manufacturing creating opportunity for mistakes.

03

Turnaround

Patient specific medication, by limiting batch sizes, significantly increases manufacturing times.

04

Additives

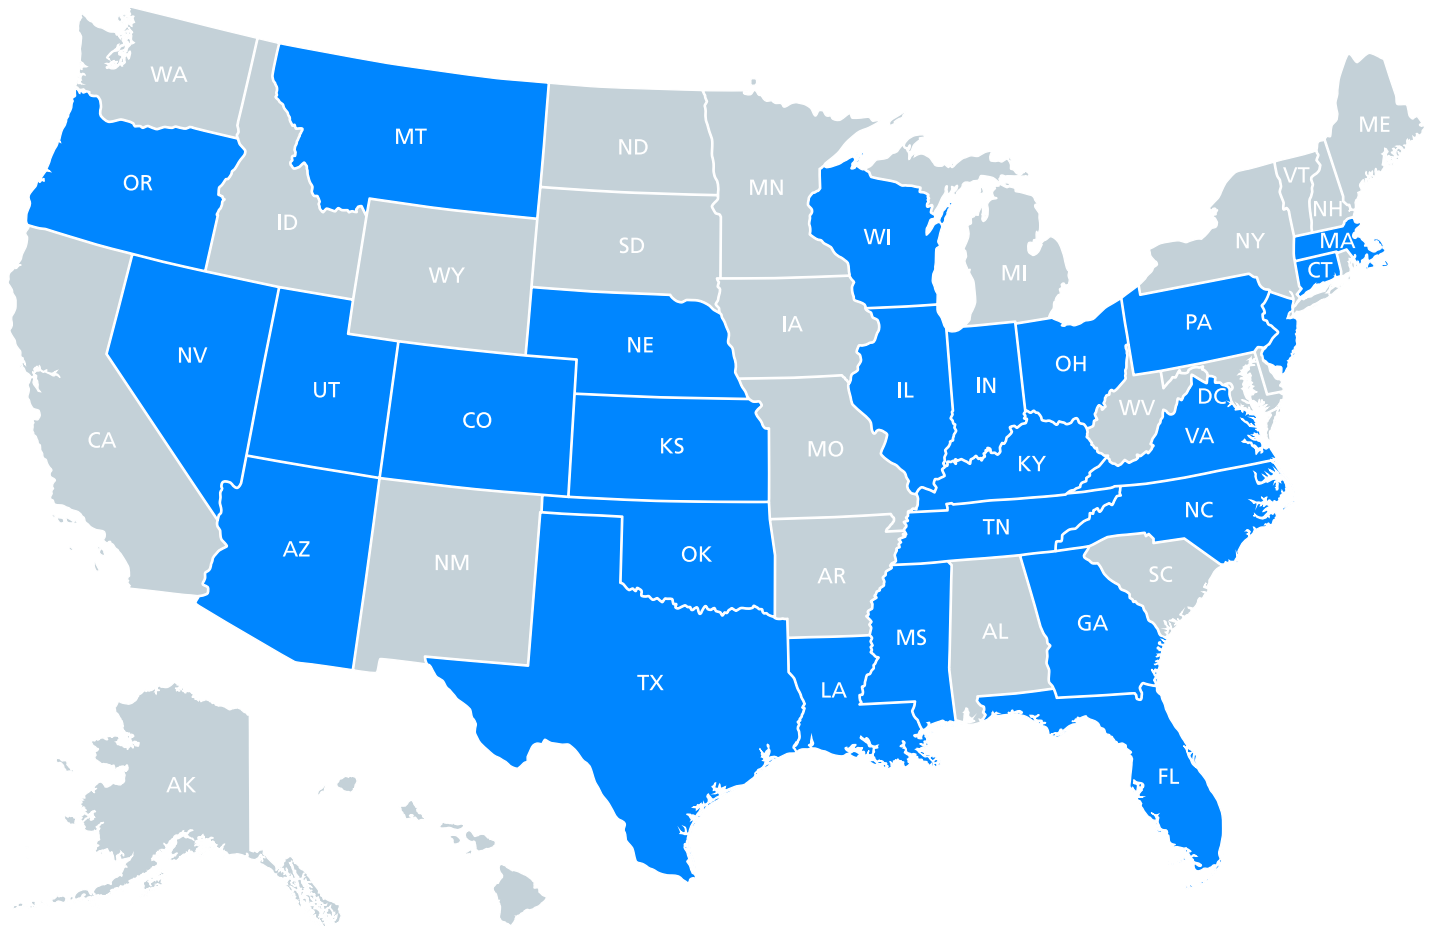

Often times diluted with salt bases, vitamins or other additives allowing for easier manufacturing on patient specific medications.
